MICRO GREEN /CRESS VARIETIES

Microgreens or Cress is a tiny vegetable green....

It has used as both visual and flavour component. This ingredient is primarily used in fine dining restaurants. Fine dining chefs use micro greens to enhance the beauty, taste and freshness of their dishes.

Appear to be smaller than "baby greens," and harvested later than "sprouts," micro greens can provide a variety of leaf flavours, such as sweet and spicy. They are also known for their various colours and textures.

Among upscale markets, they are now considered a specialty genre of greens that are good for garnishing salads, soups, plates, and sandwiches. This young edible greens are produced from vegetable, herb or other plants.
